

CALL FOR PAPERS

Third International Doctoral Workshop of the Kant-Society: 11 October – 13 October 2018, University of Graz (Austria)

The Third International Doctoral Workshop of the Kant-Society will be held at the University of Graz (Austria) from 11 to 13 October 2018. The aim of the workshop is to discuss work-in-progress from doctoral students who are working on a thesis on Kant's philosophy, and to foster interactions among doctoral students as well as between doctoral students and established Kant scholars.

The programme includes an opening lecture by Prof. Udo Thiel (Graz) and three keynote talks by Prof. Dietmar Heidemann (Luxembourg), Prof. Camilla Serck-Hanssen (Oslo) and Prof. Günter Zöller (Munich).

Abstracts (max 700 words) and a summary of the thesis project in a separate file (max. 300 words) should be sent via e-mail to one of the addresses below by 1 February 2018. Invitations to those contributors whose submissions have been selected will be sent out at the end of March/April 2018.

Workshop languages are German and English.

10 Submissions will be selected by a committee nominated by the Department of Philosophy at the University of Graz and the international Kant Society. At the workshop, each paper will be given 30 minutes plus 30 minutes for discussion. For those students whose contributions are selected the organizers will pay for their accommodation in Graz and, as far as possible, for their travel expenses. In addition, participation in the workshop is open to everyone who is interested.

The thematic focus of the workshop is Immanuel Kant: The Synthetic A priori; however topics not directly related to this theme are also welcome. Papers relating to any issue in Kant's philosophy from theoretical, moral, aesthetic, political themes etc. will be considered. In addition, contributions may be from a variety of perspectives: historical, textual, analytical and systematic.
